

Dear Families,

We are creating a classroom informational book called Animal Homes in which children can share facts they know about where different animals live. To support this work, please talk to your child about animals that interest them or animals they know about. You might ask some of the following questions to help generate ideas and jot down what your child says. Send this information back to school in order to help your child be prepared to share, draw and/or write about this topic.

- What animal do you know a lot about?
- What do you know about this animal?
- What do you know about this animal's home?
- What does its home look like?
- What is it made of?

If your child shares some ideas with you that you think are factually inaccurate, honor their thinking. You can always use their ideas as a springboard for learning more about the topic together.

Thank you for your support!
